Liebherr and Tigerair Taiwan have signed a long term customer service contract. Under this agreement, Liebherr-Aerospace will provide repair support services for a wide range of air conditioning and bleed systems components installed on 15 Airbus A320neo aircraft operated by the airline. Liebherr-Singapore, Liebherr-Aerospace's dedicated service center for the Asia-Pacific region, will provide all material support and component maintenance services. The agreement between the OEM Liebherr-Aerospace and the airline Tigerair Taiwan was signed during Singapore Airshow 2022.

"We are pleased to have signed this new agreement with Liebherr-Aerospace in order to gain their great support as they are one of the professionals in this industry. Leveraging Liebherr's extensive experience in this field, its repair support service will be Tigerair Taiwan's a reliable backing", commented Dennis Lai, Chief Operations Officer at Tigerair Taiwan.

"This is a great step ahead for Liebherr-Aerospace in the Asia-Pacific region. We are excited and grateful to welcome Tigerair Taiwan among our customers and the opportunity to build a long lasting partnership. Being selected as one of their service providers is a strong proof of their trust in the high quality and efficiency of our people and service", said Ekkehard Pracht, General Manager Aerospace at Liebherr Singapore.

Tigerair Taiwan is the only Taiwanese low-cost carrier based at Taoyuan International Airport. It is wholly-owned by China Airlines. Embedded in the network of the China Airlines' group or airlines, it operates short and medium haul services to domestic and international destinations across East Asia and Oceania.
