INFINITY FLIGHT GROUP EXPANDS ITS TRAINING FLEET WITH 10 ADDITIONAL CESSNA SKYHAWKS

News / Maintenance / Trainings, Manufacturer

Infinity Flight Group signed an agreement for the purchase of 10 additional Cessna Skyhawks aircraft, expected to be delivered in 2027. Infinity Flight Group has steadily expanded its fleet during the last three years, ordering a combined total of 35 new Cessna Skyhawks. A certified Cessna Pilot Center, Infinity Flight Group currently operates 65 Cessna Skyhawks out of their bases at Trenton-Mercer Airport in New Jersey and Treasure Coast Airport in Ft. Pierce, Florida. The additional aircraft will join the flight school's current fleet of Cessna Skyhawks, enhancing its capacity to train the next generation of aviators.

Chris Crow, vice president, Piston Sales Textron Aviation commented: "The Cessna Skyhawk sets the standard in reliability and performance. Organizations like Infinity Flight Group continue to place trust in this industry-leading aircraft, which is ideal for both student pilots and private owners."

The best-selling, high-wing piston has earned a reputation for reliability, ease of use, and versatility over the decades, making it a favorite among flight schools and experienced pilots. Infinity Flight Group's new aircraft will feature the recently announced dual electronic ignition system (dual EIS), enhancing maintenance, efficiency and overall operation of the Skyhawk. As Textron Aviation celebrates the Cessna 172 Skyhawk's 70th anniversary this year, this continued investment in innovation underscores the aircraft's exceptional design and enduring capabilities, marking seven decades since its first flight in June 1955.

© 2015-2026 50SKYSHADES.COM — Reproduction, copying, or redistribution for commercial purposes is prohibited.

27 JULY 2025

ARTICLE LINK:
https://50skyshades.com/news/maintenance-trainings/infinity-flight-group-expands-its-training-fleet-with-10-additional-cessna-skyhawks

© 2015-2026 50SKYSHADES.COM — Reproduction, copying, or redistribution for commercial purposes is prohibited.