BAA TRAINING FRANCE INSTALLS THE FOURTH FULL FLIGHT SIMULATOR – A320NEO

News / Maintenance / Trainings

BAA Training recently began installation of the fourth full flight simulator at its BAA Training France facility which is set to open at the end of September. BAA Training France, located near Paris Orly Airport, is already equipped with the B737 NG, and B747-400, while the second B737 NG simulator will soon be available for trainees. Even though the facility will be opened at the end of September, a few simulators are already available to pilots.

Vytautas Ledakas, Managing Director of BAA Training France, commented: "BAA Training France is Europe's latest cutting-edge training center, representing excellence in aviation training. With top-notch full flight simulators for three aircraft types that are more appealing and versatile for pilots, additional training devices, and a wealth of expertise, we guarantee seamless pilot preparation and catering to the increasing industry demand."
