Euroairlines, the Spanish company specialized in air distribution, is reinforcing its presence in Asia through a new interline agreement with Greater Bay Airlines, at Hong Kong-based carrier. This partnership expands the flight networks of both companies and offers passengers a wider range of travel options.

The agreement supports Euroairlines' continued growth in the Asian market by providing its customers with access to a broader portfolio of destinations across the region. In turn, Greater Bay Airlines gains entry to new routes in Central Asia and the Middle East, while also being able to distribute its flights through travel agencies operating in more than 75 international markets where Euroairlines is present, significantly extending its global reach.

Greater Bay Airlines currently operates key routes to destinations such as Tokyo, Osaka, Bangkok, Taipei, and the Chinese Mainland, positioning it as a strategic player in Asian air connectivity. Through this interline agreement, Euroairlines passengers will be able to seamlessly combine flights from both carriers, benefiting from a more flexible and convenient travel experience.

Antonio López-Lázaro, CEO of Euroairlines, commented: “This agreement allows us to offer our customers more destinations and greater travel options to Asia, one of the most dynamic markets in the world. The addition of Greater Bay Airlines strengthens our international growth strategy and reinforces our presence on key routes.”

Through this collaboration, Euroairlines and Greater Bay Airlines enhance connectivity between Europe and Asia, expand travel opportunities for both passengers and travel agencies, and further consolidate their positions as key players in the global aviation market.
