News / Airlines

Nile Air plans to link Europe to Sharm el Sheikh and Hurghada as part of a plan that sees the airline acquiring widebodies by 2020.

The airline told ch-aviation that its European routes would operate using a combination of chartered and scheduled flights.

Nile Air will be taking delivery of its fifth and sixth A320-200's in May and July of next year to help with the new plan.

By 2020, Nile Air hopes to operate service to Casablanca International, Istanbul Sabiha Gökçen, London Heathrow, Paris CDG, Madrid Barajas and Warsaw Chopin.
