CAE has begun training on Gulfstream aircraft platforms at new US locations in Las Vegas, Nevada, and Savannah, Georgia, and will start training in November at a new Asia Pacific location in Singapore. The start of operations at these three new locations marks an important milestone in the expansion of CAE's global business aviation pilot and maintenance training network.

Nick Leontidis, CAE's Group President, Civil Aviation, commented: "We are making significant investments in our business aviation training network to meet operators' growing demand for highly trained pilots and maintenance technicians. The expansion of our network is part of our commitment to be close to where our customers operate their aircraft and to help meet the global requirement for pilots and maintenance technicians, which we estimate to be 44,000 additional business aviation pilots and 66,000 business aircraft technicians over the next 10 years."
