TAG Aviation Asia celebrates 10 Years of professional excellence and bespoke client services here in Asia. To mark this milestone both in service and safety, true to their name - Techniques d'Avant Garde is determined to invest in the future of their people.

TAG Aviation Asia (TAA) has recently launched a unique opportunity to prospective employees who aspire to be aviators. "TAA Aviator" is a fully sponsored Cadet Pilot Programme at Flight Training Adelaide, (FTA) Australia.

This comprehensive programme will include intense flight training to a commercial pilot level, an instructor rating qualification and the opportunity to commence a 3-year tenure as a flight instructor at FTA. During the time at FTA the cadets will mature and grow as professional pilots before returning to Hong Kong to continue their journey in TAA's fleet.

“At TAG Aviation Asia, we believe in investing in the future of our people,” said Kobus Swart, Chief Operating Officer, embodying the company’s core value of passion for their people. As a worldwide leader in the delivery of personal air transportation, TAA continues to push toward the future, forging a strong foundation in the business aviation sector whilst offering their employees opportunities to fulfill their potential and proving that dreams can indeed become a reality. TAA is the first business aviation management company in Asia to introduce such a coveted employer sponsored flying programme, a true example of how TAA continues to raise the industry bar.
