Civil Aviation Administration of Vietnam has certified ExecuJet Haite Aviation Services to do line and heavy maintenance on Vietnam-registered Dassault, Embraer and Gulfstream business jets. The certification applies to ExecuJet Haite's start-of-the-art maintenance, repair and overhaul facilities at Tianjin Binhai International Airport and Beijing Daxing International Airport, solidifying its position as a leading business aviation MRO provider for the region.

The certification covers: Dassault Falcon 7X and 8X aircraft, Gulfstream G650ER, and Embraer Legacy aircraft. The Legacy series of business jets is derived from Embraer's EMB-135 and EMB-145 commercial regional jets. Vietnam civil aviation regulator has also certified ExecuJet Haite to perform inspections, maintenance and preventative maintenance on the engines installed on the aircraft, namely the 8X's PW307D, the G650ER's Rolls-Royce BR700-725A1 and the Legacy's Rolls-Royce AE3007 engines.

ExecuJet Haite is an authorised service centre for Dassault Aviation, Embraer and for Gulfstream aircraft. This, coupled with the Chinese MRO organisation's proximity to Vietnam, make it an attractive choice for Vietnamese operators. Being an ASC means ExecuJet Haite can, on behalf of the customer, do work under manufacturer warranty.

Paul Desgrosseilliers, General Manager of ExecuJet Haite commented: "This CAAV certification for airframe and engines – along with our ASC status from the three aircraft manufacturers – creates a streamlined and efficient pathway for Vietnamese business jet owners and operators to service their aircraft. This approval from the CAAV is a testament to the rigorous standards and exceptional quality of our technical services in both Tianjin and Daxing," he says, adding that "it positions us an ideal maintenance partner for Vietnam's dynamic and growing business aviation sector. Aircraft owners and operators of these business aircraft in Vietnam can now seamlessly schedule their heavy maintenance checks with us, confident in our regulatory compliance, technical expertise and commitment to service excellence. We offer a compelling combination of world-class service, logistical convenience, and now, full regulatory acceptance from their home authority."
