Among exhibitors registered are ABS Jets, Aerodit, Air BP, Air Service Basel, Air Support, Avfuel, BBA Aviation, DC Aviation, Flanders International Airport, G-OPS, German Aviation Service, Jet Services/Advanced, Marshall, Signature Flight, Sky Services, SkyValet, SNC, Lavalin, South Air Iceland and UKIP Events.

“AIR OPS Europe will be a great platform to network with key decision makers and strengthen existing relationships with our customers,” explains Paul James, DC Aviation. “It’s also a great venue to learn the latest industry trends and share best practices.”

“This business aviation support services convention will give us the opportunity to see our customers and providers, expand our network and be a part of the debate regarding the legislation and standardization of procedures for improving the ground operations services provided to our customers,” adds Karim Berrandou, G-Ops.

Operators are throwing their support behind AIR OPS Europe too.

“At GlobeAir we set the bar very high to delight our passengers at any stage of the journey. We are committed to delivering clients the highest quality experience before, during, and after the flight. Therefore, when it comes to FBOs, we want to ensure the same quality standard. We strongly believe that the key for success lies in having a network of trustworthy international partners throughout the entire value chain, and AIR OPS Europe has the potential to become a crucial platform to guarantee transparency and synergy in our industry. GlobeAir is excited to join the first edition of AIR OPS Europe.” Bernhard Fragner, Founder & CEO, GlobeAir.

AIR OPS will bring business aviation operators and the support community in Europe together in one forum for networking opportunities and insights, as well as a unique chance to engage in an industry dialogue on key issues. www.airopseurope.aero
