MQ-1B PREDATOR CRASHES IN TURKEY

News / Events / Festivals

An Air Force MQ-1B Predator, a remotely piloted aircraft, crashed in southern Turkey at approximately 9:36 p.m. local time, Oct. 19.

The aircraft experienced mechanical failure after conducting a mission in support of Operation Inherent Resolve. The Air Force maintained positive control and brought the aircraft down in an unpopulated area.

There were no military or civilian injuries. U.S. military and Turkish officials have positive control of the aircraft. An investigation is underway to determine the specific cause of the crash.

22 OCTOBER 2015

SOURCE: AEROTIME
ARTICLE LINK:
https://50skyshades.com/index.php/news/events-festivals/mq-1b-predator-crashes-in-turkey

© 2015-2026 50SKYSHADES.COM — Reproduction, copying, or redistribution for commercial purposes is prohibited.