

PASSENGER JET CONVERTED INTO LUXURY HOTEL IN COSTA RICA RAINFOREST

News / Events / Festivals

An old Boeing 727 passenger jet destined for scrap has been salvaged and converted into a luxury hotel suite.

The £300 a night suite is perched on a purpose built ledge within the Costa Rican rainforest

For £2,100 a week guests can enjoy the novelty of sleeping in the converted 1965 Boeing 727 that once carried passengers around the world with Colombian Avianca Airlines

For £2,100 a week guests can enjoy the novelty of sleeping in the converted 1965 Boeing 727 that once carried passengers around the world with Colombian Avianca Airlines

The plane was transported in pieces from San Jose International Airport and rebuilt to create the luxury suite within the resort just outside the village of Quepos, Costa Rica

The plane was transported in pieces from San Jose International Airport and rebuilt to create the luxury suite within the resort just outside the village of Quepos, Costa Rica

Construction of the Plane Hotel

Image not found or type unknown

Construction of the Plane Hotel

Guests staying in the converted plane are charged as much as they would be to sleep in a room at The Ri

Image not found or type unknown

Guests staying in the converted plane are charged as much as they would be to sleep in a room at The Ritz in London

Construction of the Plane Hotel

Image not found or type unknown

Construction of the Plane Hotel

Guest can have full run of the two-bedroom, two-bathroom suite which also includes a kitchenette, flat-scr

Image not found or type unknown

Guest can have full run of the two-bedroom, two-bathroom suite which also includes a kitchenette, flat-screen tvs, a dining room and a terrace with a sea view

The suite is part of the Costa Verde resort, which is located on the edge of the Manuel Antonia National Pa

Image not found or type unknown

The suite is part of the Costa Verde resort, which is located on the edge of the Manuel Antonia National Par

The inside of the jet is furnished with hand-carved teak panelling from the former cockpit to the tail which is

Image not found or type unknown

The inside of the jet is furnished with hand-carved teak panelling from the former cockpit to the tail which is all harvested locally in Costa Rica

A spokesperson for the Costa Verde, said: 'The airplane is perched on a custom built platform 15m up from

Image not found or type unknown

A spokesperson for the Costa Verde, said: 'The airplane is perched on a custom built platform 15m up from the ground.'

'At this height guests will be able to enjoy scenic ocean and jungle views both from the plane windows and

Image not found or type unknown

At this height guests will be able to enjoy scenic ocean and jungle views both from the plane windows and the handcrafted deck which has been built on top of its wings.

18 MARCH 2016

SOURCE: THE TELEGRAPH

ARTICLE LINK:

<https://50skyshades.com/index.php/news/events-festivals/passenger-jet-converted-into-luxury-hotel-in-costa-rica-rainforest>