News / Finance, Manufacturer

On October 26, 2016, Fitch Ratings upgraded Russian Helicopters JSC's (RH) Long-Term Issuer Default Rating (IDR) to 'BB+' from 'BB' and affirmed the Short-Term IDR at 'B'. The Outlook on the Long-Term IDR is Stable, the rating agency informed.

The upgrade reflects Fitch's views that the recent improvement in the company's funds from operations (FFO), whilst essentially caused by the depreciation of the rouble, will probably lead to a sustainably improved financial profile with key financial ratios remaining at a level commensurate with new rating. Fitch believes that the company has achieved a structural improvement in its pricing and cost structure and is well placed to apply future expected strong free cash flow (FCF) towards debt reduction.

In line with Fitch's parent-subsidary linkage methodology, the ratings incorporate a one-notch uplift for support for the company from its ultimate parent, the Russian Federation (BBB-/Stable).
