

ROCKWELL COLLINS TO PROVIDE FLEET-WIDE INTERNATIONAL TRIP SUPPORT SERVICES FOR HONG KONG BASED METROJET

News / Business aviation, Manufacturer

Metrojet, a Hong Kong based six-star business aviation services company, has engaged Rockwell Collins' ARINC DirectSM to provide international trip support services for its fleet business aircraft. The new contract expands Metrojet's relationship with Rockwell Collins, which is currently using a number of ARINC Direct's integrated services.

"Metrojet is dedicated to upholding the highest standards and meeting our customer's needs in the most professional and personal way possible," said Björn Näf, CEO at Metrojet. "Standardizing our fleet on ARINC Direct services provides economies of scale and cost savings that benefit both our business and our customers."

“ARINCDirect is uniquely positioned to provide our customers with the most comprehensive portfolio of flight support solutions in the industry,” said Brian Kruger, senior director, ARINCDirect Flight Services for Rockwell Collins. “This agreement is a major milestone for our ARINCDirect services in Hong Kong and paves the way for our continual growth of international trip support business in Asia.”
