BRITISH AIRWAYS TO BE THE FIRST AIRLINE TO FLY TO ST HELENA

News / Airports / Routes

British Airways, operated by Comair, is preparing to be the first airline to fly scheduled flights to St Helena.

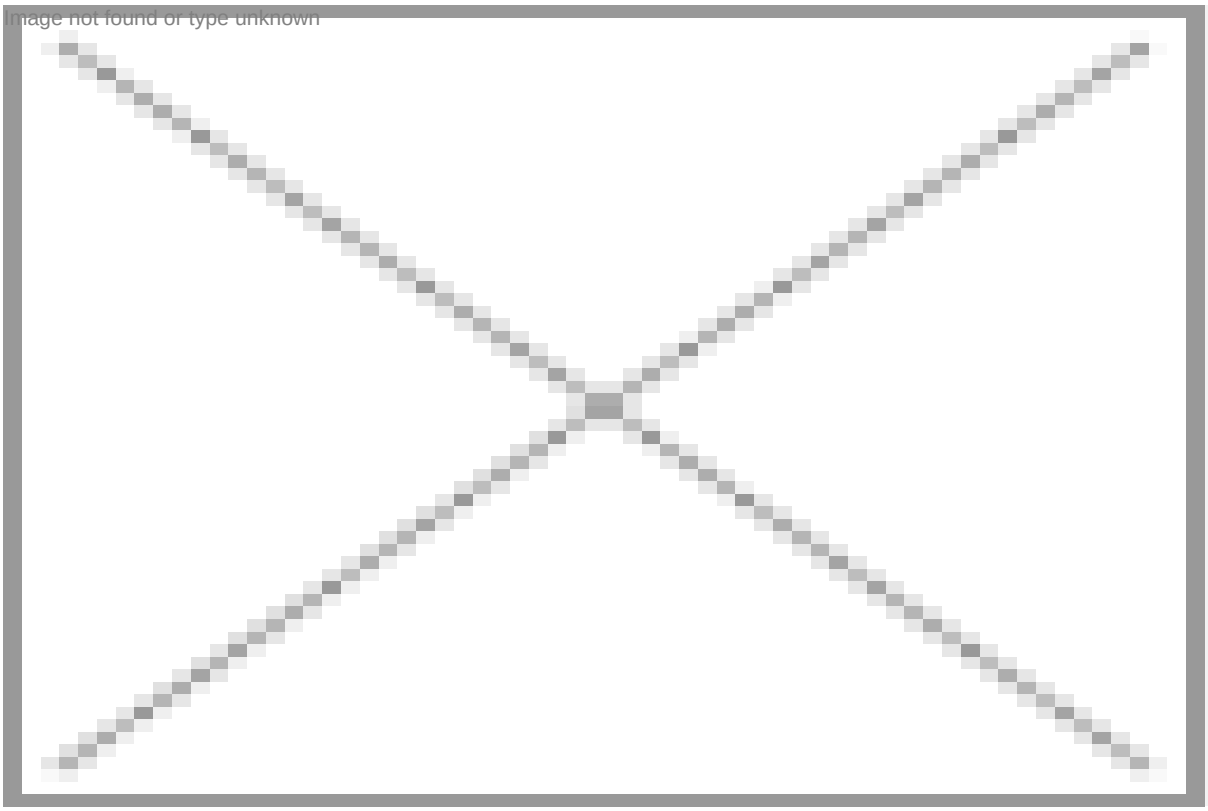
Flights will depart Johannesburg's O.R. Tambo International Airport to St Helena and return each Saturday.

"We're proud to have been selected to provide an airline service to the St Helena. This is an important addition to our existing routes in South Africa, sub-Saharan Africa and the Indian Ocean islands," said CEO, Erik Venter.

British Airways, operated by Comair, offers over 400 flights a week across southern Africa.

© 2015-2026 50SKYSHADES.COM — Reproduction, copying, or redistribution for commercial purposes is prohibited.

Image not found or type unknown



15 APRIL 2016

SOURCE: AFRICANAEROSPACE
ARTICLE LINK:
https://50skyshades.com/news/airports-routes/british-airways-to-be-the-first-airline-to-fly-to-st-helena

© 2015-2026 50SKYSHADES.COM — Reproduction, copying, or redistribution for commercial purposes is prohibited.