

ALLIANCEJET CONTINUES ITS EXPANSION AND WELCOMES THE BOEING 737-800 TO ITS FLEET

News / Business aviation

AllianceJet, part of the Alliance Aviation Group of companies, is expanding its fleet with the Boeing 737-800, the company's third aircraft after the Bombardier Global 6000 and Bombardier Challenger 605. Leading the next generation of mid-sized aircraft, Boeing 737-800's innovative design delivers superior reliability, exceptional performance, and unparalleled comfort, meeting AllianceJet's high travel standards. With its seating capacity of 189 and large cargo space, the aircraft will enable AllianceJet to extend its bespoke business aviation services in the Middle East to a larger customer base, including corporate groups and other charter services.

The environmentally progressive aircraft adheres to AllianceJet's commitment to promoting sustainable aircraft mobility, delivering high fuel efficiency, low emission rates and low community noise impact without compromising on performance, safety or comfort. Additionally, the modern interior, ample luggage capacity, relaxed seating, and experienced crew will ensure the continuation of AllianceJet's high standard of business aviation services for its clients.
