

INSPIRATION TO WORK IN THE INDUSTRY - TESTIMONIALS FROM GENERAL AVIATION SERVICE IBIZA STATION

News / Business aviation

We keep sharing with you General Aviation Service team's success stories and industry-starter motivations. Ibiza would undoubtedly rank among the top three Spanish cities if we asked you to name them. With great pleasure, we present Ovidiu Valentin Groza, the Ibiza Station Manager.

T.O. What was your way to work in GAS?

O.V.G. While working in a different branch of aviation, an ex colleague landed a position in GAS, and while he described the position I thought it would be the exact kind of thing I would be end up loving doing and sent my CV in. It just so happened that, after a couple of months, a position came up and I was called for an interview. And the rest is history.

T.O. What makes you happy working in Aviation?

O.V.G. I am a really extroverted personality and love learning new things, thus this job scratched an itch for both. I love meeting new customers and pilots and tackling new obstacles on a daily basis. Also, coming from a non aviation background (entertainment industry) it was a whole new world that opened up for me.

T.O. What you wish GAS for next 45 years?

O.V.G. To keep up the good work and professionalism I got to experience up to this moment.

T.O. What you would say to motivate future generations of aviation professionals?

O.V.G. If you're not sure about your career path, give aviation a go, you might just fall in love. It's a really exciting industry that combines really impressive tech with people skills. What's not to love about it?
