

TRAXXALL TECHNOLOGIES ANNOUNCES PARTNERSHIP WITH UK-BASED ROCKETROUTE AND NEW CLIENT GLOBEAIR OF AUSTRIA

News / Business aviation

Traxxall Technologies, providers of innovative aircraft maintenance tracking systems, today announced a partnership with RocketRoute, developers of cloud-based flight planning systems, and new client GlobeAir, a leading air taxi operator based in Austria.

Traxxall Technologies was founded on the conclusion that pre-existing aircraft maintenance tracking systems were inadequate. A “clean sheet” solution, Traxxall offers the flexibility that the business aviation industry demands. In addition to offering technological excellence, Traxxall’s “peer-to-peer” service and support are delivered by business aviation experts.

RocketRoute is a service that interoperates seamlessly with any mobile device. Currently used in more than 70 countries, RocketRoute has in excess of 100,000 registered users.

The integration of maintenance tracking and flight planning is exceptionally practical. The filing process generates precise estimated distances and flight hours. This data is automatically cross referenced with records and maintenance milestones are projected. The benefits for business aircraft operators include increased efficiency, ease-of-use and the confidence of knowing that maintenance needs are being calculated before take-off.

Air charter company GlobeAir uses Traxxall to manage the maintenance tracking of its fleet of 14 Cessna Citation Mustangs – making it the largest Mustang fleet operator in the world.

“In order to be competitive, productivity is central to all aspects of our operations. Traxxall contributes to our overall efficiency by making aircraft maintenance tracking more transparent, more accessible and more reliable. These benefits help us manage aircraft downtime with greater precision. Choosing Traxxall has been a very good decision for our company,” says Claudio Bruno, Chief Operating Officer, GlobeAir.

“We are pleased to announce our partnership with RocketRoute and our new client GlobeAir,” continues Blair Henderson, Regional Sales Director, Traxxall. “Working with RocketRoute is an excellent fit because it enables us to combine our distinct areas of expertise and offer an unprecedented solution to the business aviation market. Whereas GlobeAir are disciplined operators who use innovation to contribute to their competitive edge. We look forward to working with them and hope to contribute to their success. Our commitment to all partners and clients is to serve the business aviation community by providing technologically innovative products backed by exceptional service and support.”
