The inaugural Small Operator Symposium will debut on Oct. 15, prior to the opening of NBAA-BACE, to specifically address issues facing operators with two airplanes or less. "We welcome any operator who considers themselves to be a small operator to attend this new symposium," said NBAA Manager of Operations Brian Koester. "About 80 percent of our operating members are small flight departments, so we are excited to provide this critical information to such a wide segment of the NBAA operating membership."
