

PHILIPPINE AIRLINES RELAUNCHES PAL AVIATION SCHOOL, PARTNERS WITH AIRWAYS AVIATION

News / Maintenance / Trainings

Philippine Airlines is set to reopen the PAL Aviation School as a prominent training center for new pilots under a strategic partnership with the globally recognized flight training organization, Airways Aviation Group, to deliver best-in-class pilot training as part of its long-term commitment to operational excellence, safety and workforce development.

Following an extensive evaluation process, Airways Aviation's Australia-based training academy was selected for its strong track record in delivering high-quality, internationally aligned pilot training programs. The partnership underscores Philippine Airlines' drive to ensure that its cadets receive consistent, world-class instruction that meets the highest global aviation standards.

PAL President and Chief Operating Officer Capt. Stanley K. Ng. commented: "Airways Aviation met our stringent requirements and demonstrated their robust emphasis on safety culture and competency-based training methodologies. We value the importance of in-house training in shaping pilots with a global outlook, armed with the exceptional skills and innovative spirit required to meet the challenges of the future."

PAL OIC Executive Vice President – General Counsel Atty. Carlos Luis Fernandez stated: "Our revitalized Aviation School will help develop this vital workforce: individuals who are not only outstanding in their craft but also globally minded citizens committed to building a sustainable future for aviation. This meaningful collaboration with Airways Aviationss draws from the deep well of expertise and shared commitment to excellence that both our organizations are known for."

Romy Hawatt, Founder and Chairman of Airways Aviation Group said: "We are honoured to be selected as the official training provider for the next generation of Philippine Airlines pilots. This partnership is not only a recognition of our global training capabilities, but a testament to the shared values and vision that bind our two organizations. Together, we are investing in the future of aviation. This is more than a training programme. It's a strategic alliance built on trust, ambition and a shared commitment to aviation excellence and sustainability."

Janet Dalby, CEO Australasia and Pacific, Airways Aviation Group commented: "Our goal is to create a seamless, globally connected training experience that benefits cadets and the broader industry. This collaboration allows us to support Philippine Airlines with the latest in aviation education technology, while also contributing to national workforce development objectives in the Philippines."

This partnership also represents a significant step forward in the strengthening of education and training bonds between the Philippines and Australia, reinforcing both countries' roles in shaping a safer, more skilled and more resilient global aviation workforce. Philippine Airlines has reaffirmed its commitment to nurturing home-grown talent by combining local investment with global best practice, ensuring its pilots are equipped to operate at the highest level of safety and professionalism.

The first group of cadets will commence Foundation training and undergo assessment and selection processes in the Philippines followed training further aviation theory and practical training at Airways Aviation's Australian campuses, where they will receive comprehensive instruction supported by expert faculty, industry-leading technology, and hands-on practical experience.

13 APRIL 2025

ARTICLE LINK:

<https://50skyshades.com/news/maintenance-trainings/philippine-airlines-relaunches-pal-aviation-school-partners-with-airways-aviation>