DAHER STRENGTHENS ITS PRESENCE ON AIRBUS' A321 FINAL ASSEMBLY LINES IN FRANCE WITH AN EXPANDED CONTRACT

News / Manufacturer

Daher has been entrusted with an industrial services assignment on Airbus' second A321 final assembly line in Toulouse, France – effectively doubling the scope of its operations related to the build-up of this single-engine jetliner. Since 2022, Daher has been the lead service provider for the A321 FAL in Toulouse, named after Jean?Luc Lagardère. At the end of 2025, Airbus renewed the contract for the initial final assembly line, and awarded Daher the same operations on the second FAL at the Toulouse site.

These services include preparing the fuselage (cabin equipment, electrical systems, cockpit, carpeting) and the wings (preparation of assembly surfaces, hydraulic draining, hatch removal) – ensuring quality and smooth workflow throughout the process.

Cédric Eloy, the CEO of Daher Industrial Services commented: "This expansion reflects the strength of our partnership with Airbus. We successfully supported the launch of the first Airbus A321 FAL, and we're now continuing the journey with the second final assembly line. By pooling
